Dorothy Round

WIMBLEDON STARS ARRIVE IN HONG KONG

Dorothy Round And Mary Heeley.

TO PLAY IN EXHIBITION TO-DAY
AT H. K. C. C.

Dorothy Round and Mary Heeley, two of Britain's foremost lady tennis players, arrived in the Colony early this morning by the Comorin. Arrangements have been made to stage an exhibition mixed doubles match at the Hong Kong Cricket Club at 4 p.m., as the Interport Cricket match between Malaya and Shanghai is expected to finish before 3 p.m.

Sirdar Rumjahn has unfortunately declined the L.T.A. invitation to play, and M. W. Lo, of the C.R.C., former Colony Champion, and Teddy Fincher, the K.C.C. holder, have been selected.

It is understood that M. W. Lo will partner Miss Round against Fincher and Miss Heeley.

Owing to the exhibition the match between Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel and M. W. Lo and Mrs. Erid Lo-Liton in the Semi-Final Round of the Colony Mixed Doubles Championship, scheduled for this afternoon, has been postponed.

GOVERNMENT PROHIBITION OF EXPORTS?

RESERVE BANK SELL
STERLING.

INFLATIONISTS JUBILANT

New York, To-day.

The United States dollar yesterday strengthened from 5.52 to 5.26 as a result of the rumours that the Government is about to take steps to end the flight of capital from the United States.

Foreign exchange dealers expect formal notification to-day, prohibiting further export of capital.

It is also rumoured that the Reserve Bank is heavily selling sterling and buying dollars. —Reuter.

INFLATION CURE FAVoured

Morgenthau Supports
Silver Scheme.

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegrams. Copyright. Ordinance, 1894. Received November 17, 10.10 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.

The inflationists are jubilant over Mr. Henry Morgenthau's appointment as Acting Secretary of the United States Treasury.

Mr. Morgenthau openly favours controlled inflation and the reducing of the gold content of the dollar.

He believes that the increasing of currency in circulation is more likely to help to end the depression than all the other measures.

He opposes 16 to coinage, but favours the limited use of silver to help gold back to currency.

He has pledged his active support of President Roosevelt's programme.

Although Mr. Morgenthau has refused to discuss his monetary plans, it is understood that he and Mr. Warren plan to push gold buying. —United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

NEW FARM CREDIT OFFICIAL

Washington, To-day.

Mr. William Myers, Professor of Farm Finance at Cornell University, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Junior, as Deputy-Governor of the farm Credit Administration. —Reuter.

DEMORALISED U.S. EXCHANGES.

President Consults

New York, To-day.

President Roosevelt conferred for more than half an hour last night with Messrs. J. P. Morgan and Myron Taylor, who later declined to comment to the Press. Details of the meeting are not yet known.

WEALTHY AMERICAN YOUTH BEATEN TO DEATH

Kidnapper Suspect Confesses
To Ghastly Crime

San Jose, California, To-day.

It was revealed yesterday that Brooke Hart, Junior, son of a wealthy merchant, who was recently kidnapped, has been murdered by his captors.

Two suspects have been arrested, one of whom is alleged to have confessed that Hart was beaten to death and his body thrown into San Francisco Bay. —Reuter.

U.S. RECOGNITION OF SOVIET Agreement Reached.

LONG-TERM CREDITS FOR TRADE

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegrams. Copyright. Ordinance, 1894. Received November 17, 10.10 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.

President Roosevelt and M. Maxim Litvinoff were working yesterday on a draft agreement governing the recognition of the Soviet, which was probably completed last night, or will be to-day, with a recognition announcement to-night.

Messrs. William Bullitt and Henry Morgenthau, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, conferred with President Roosevelt, discussing plans for expanding Russo-American trade through long-term credits. —United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

LIBERALS JOIN OPPOSITION IN COMMONS

Samuelites Criticise Government.

LORD READING UNLIKELY TO CHANGE

London, Nov. 16.

The Liberal Party, led by Sir Herbert Samuel, to-day decided by a large majority to go into opposition from the opening of the new session of Parliament on November 21.

The major reason for this decision, which was arrived at after a meeting lasting seventy-five minutes, is dissatisfaction with the course of events in regard to Disarmament, in which the Cabinet is alleged by the Liberals to have displayed a lack of zeal and the negotiators a lack of skill.

Lord Reading leads the Liberals in the House of Lords but it is thought unlikely that he will join Sir Herbert Samuel's move. —Reuter.

and Myron Taylor, who later declined to comment to the Press. Details of the meeting are not yet known.

With the wild fluctuations in the dollar, the foreign exchange market was demoralised yesterday afternoon.

Some dealers report that they have been unofficially informed from Government sources that further export of capital would not be permitted and a formal notification to this effect is expected to-day. —Reuter.

ROOSEVELT ATTACKED

"FINANCIAL EXPERIMENT WILL FAIL"

BITTER CRITICISM OF MORGENTHAU.

"AN AFFRONT TO FINANCIAL SOLVENCY OF U. S."

New York, To-day.

The financial editor on the New York "Evening Post" asserts that the danger of "printing press" money faces the American public. He states that the retirement is insignificant.

"He has flown the flag of sound money, but resigns with 'rotowing' to the whims and fancies of the monetary illiterates he adds."

"Mr. Dean Acheson's valiant battle has been emasculated by the Roosevelt Administration. Morgenthau is a man without training or preparations. His appointment is an affront to the financial solvency of the United States."

"We are committed to a financial experiment which logic and all history indicates will end in failure," he declares. —Reuter.

ROOSEVELT LOSES LEGAL POINT.

Usurped Powers Of Treasurer.

GOLD HOARDING CASE.

New York, To-day.

The first test case in connection with President Roosevelt's decree against gold hoarding, has been decided against the President on a technical point.

While upholding the charge against Mr. Frederick Barber Campbell, the New York lawyer for failing to report U.S.$200,000 in gold, held for him by the Chase National Bank, New York, the Federal Judge ruled that the President had usurped the powers delegated to the Secretary of the Treasury in an Act of Congress on March 9. —Reuter.

LOCAL DOLLAR UNCHANGED.

Silver Prices Decline.

The dollar is unchanged, opening to-day at 1/4.

Silver prices declined yesterday, spot falling 3/16, to 185/16, while forward lost 1/4, closing at 184. The cross rate, London on New York, is 4-635.52 and New York on London is 4-635.32.

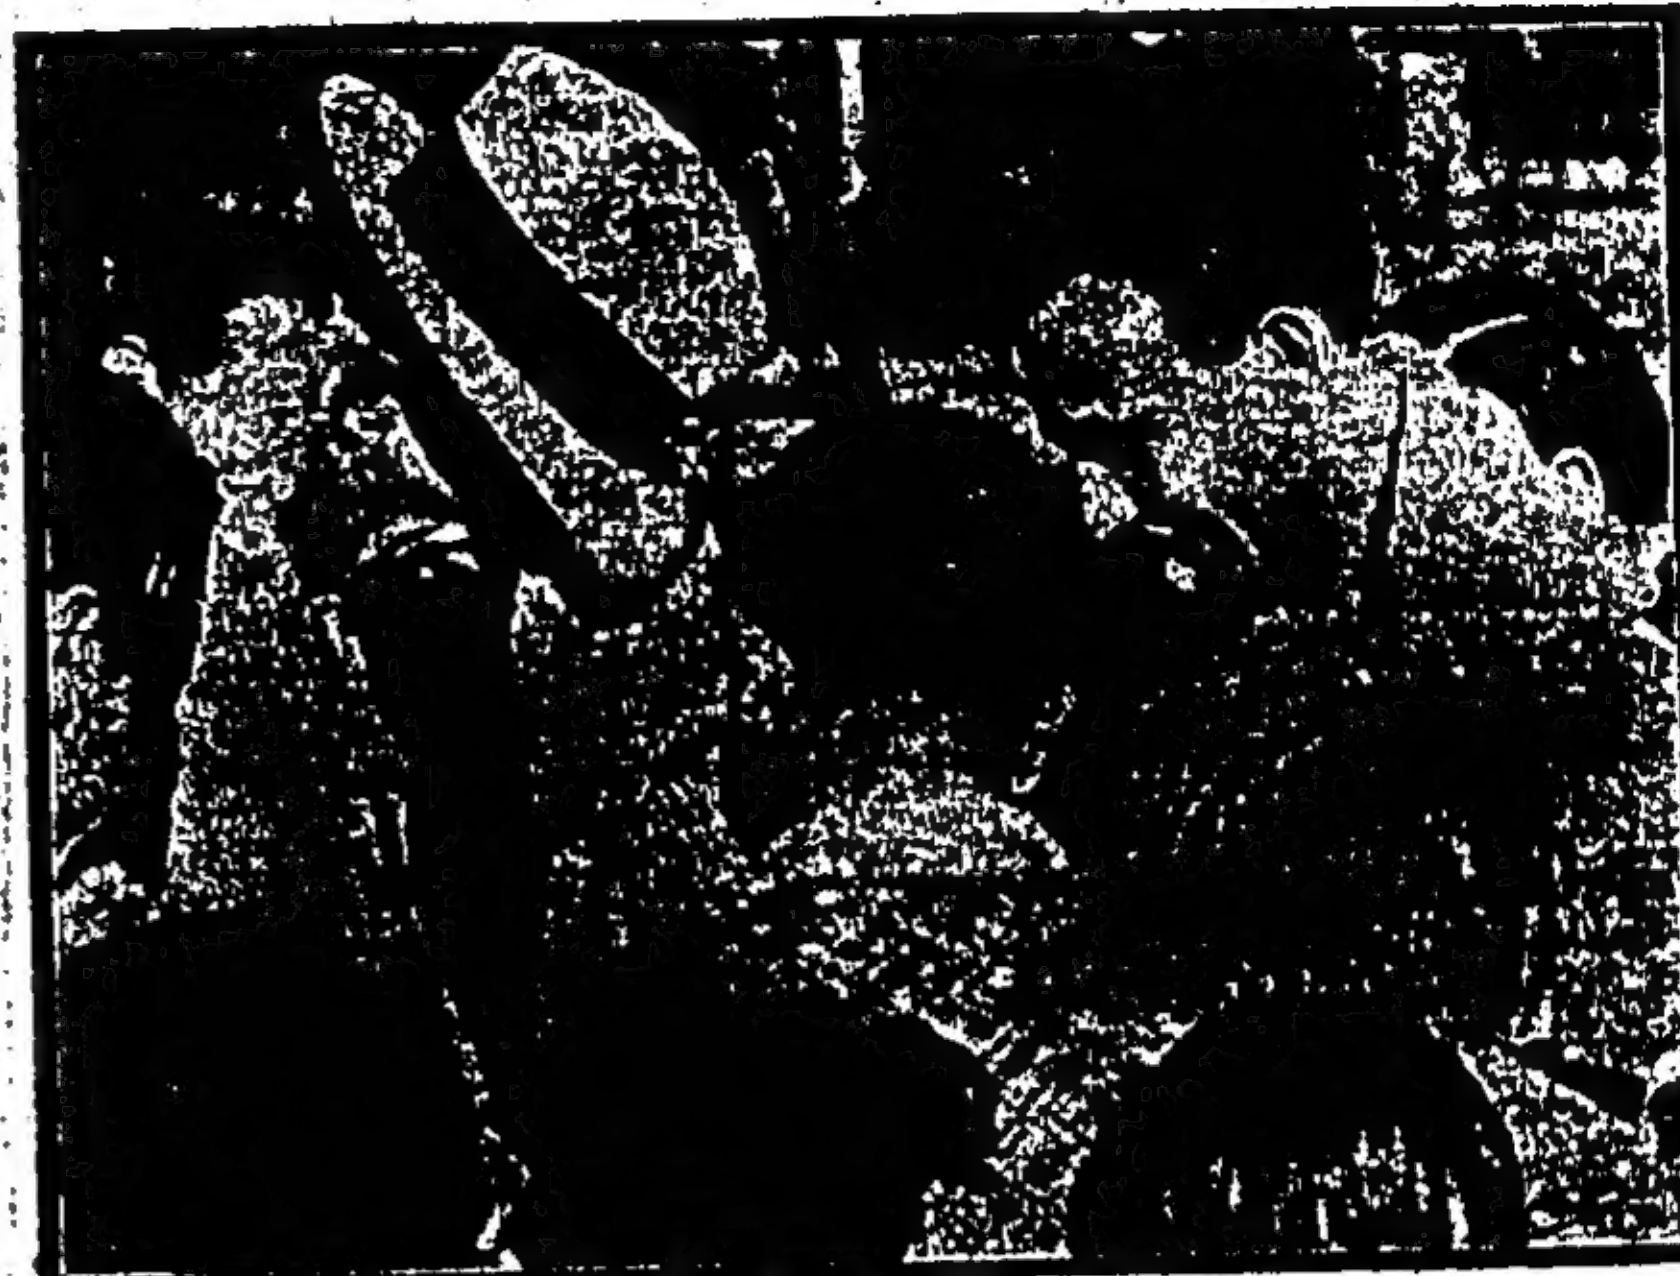

Japanese Ship Founders: Crew of 30 Feared Lost

Tokyo, To-day.

The freighter "Saiten Maru" is feared to have foundered in a storm off Loochoo, together with thirty of her crew.

One survivor and one corpse have been recovered by the "Mikasa Maru". —Reuter.

Several ships, it is understood, have answered the distress call from the Japanese steamer, "Saiten Maru", which is in difficulties off Naha, near Formosa.

BRITAIN'S LOSS OF NAVAL POWER

55,400 Fewer Sailors
Than In 1914.

BIG INCREASE IN U.S. AND JAPAN

London, To-day.

Asked what were approximately the decreases or increases in the personnel of the naval forces of Great Britain, the United States and Japan respectively at present time, as compared with 1914, the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, in the House of Commons yesterday said that, in round figures:

The United States had an increase of 39,700.

Japan had an estimated increase of 40,000.

Great Britain had a decrease of 55,400. —British Wireless Service.

NEW RECORD FOR MOTOR-BOATS

Single-Engine Craft
Reaches 102 M.P.H.

SCOTT PAINE'S FAST RUN

London, To-day.

In the Southampton water yesterday, Hubert Scott Paine, established a new world's record for the fastest speed on salt water for a single-engine motor-boat.

Driving Miss Britain III he reached an average speed of 100.132 miles per hour. The fastest of his runs was 102.105 m.p.h., which was achieved against both tide and wind.

The previous record, set up by Scott Paine himself last September, was 95.08 m.p.h. —British Wireless Service.

Scott Paine made an unsuccessful bid for the Harmsworth Trophy in Miss Britain III two months ago, but his boat was hopelessly outclassed by Commodore Gar Wood's much more powerful Miss America X.

QUICK DENIAL BY GERMANY OF PARIS REPORT

Document An Obvious Fabrication.

"TO POISON INTERNATIONAL ATMOSPHERE"

Berlin, To-day.

The alleged confidential document, sent to German agents abroad by the Central Propaganda Bureau of Berlin, instructing the agents to educate public opinion towards a favourable attitude towards Germany's claims, which was published in a Paris newspaper, yesterday, is officially declared to be an "obvious fabrication."

"It was published in order to poison the international political atmosphere," the Government spokesman asserted. —Reuter.

GERMAN-POLISH AGREEMENT

Keen Satisfaction Felt
In France.

Paris, To-day.

Official circles here express keen satisfaction at the German-Polish agreement as removing the obstacles to eventual direct Franco-German conversations and tending to a general détente.

The same circles, however, decline to comment on "Petit Parisien's" disclosures in which it is stated that Germany has adopted a conciliatory attitude towards Poland, momentarily but has in no way abandoned her claims. The French press describes the disclosures as a damning exposure of Germany's aims and methods. —Reuter.

NANKING PROTEST

Nanking, To-day.

The Foreign Office is understood to have verbally protested against the recent statement of the Japanese military attache criticising China's policy towards Japan.

The Japanese attache is credited with saying that China would have been partitioned by the Powers if it were not for Japan. —Reuter.

CREW OF 27 MISSING

SAXILBY DISASTER IN ATLANTIC

Search Abandoned
In Gale.

BRITISH SHIP WRECKED

London, To-day.

Little hope remains that any of the crew of the British steamship, "Saxilby," which on Wednesday, sent out distress calls when 400 miles off Valentia, Ireland, can have survived.

The Cunard liner, "Berengaria," the British freighter, "Manchester Regiment," and the Dutch steamship, "Boschdijk," which went to her help as fast as the fierce Atlantic gale would permit, found no trace either of the boats or of wreckage.

After scouring a large area they abandoned the search, being convinced that no small boat could possibly have lived in such momentous seas. —British Wireless Service.

The "Saxilby," which was bound for Port Talbot with a cargo of iron ore, from Newfoundland, is a vessel of 3,630 tons, and carries a crew of 27.

She sent out a wireless message requesting immediate assistance. On Wednesday, and a later message stated that the crew were trying to launch the boats. Early in the afternoon, a brief message stated the ship had been abandoned.

Another British vessel, the "St. Quentin," was also in difficulty in the violent gale. She was reported by her owners to have sustained damage to her steering gear, 800 miles west of Valentia, while on her way to Montreal with a cargo of anthracite. She was then waiting for the weather to moderate before repairs could be effected, and was reported to be in no danger.

MAINTAINING UNITY OF CHINA

Nanking Leaders On Need For Peace.

DISAFFECTED MUST BE
PLACATED IF POSSIBLE

Shanghai, To-day.

The fact that the Nanking Government is still inspired with the desire of maintaining the unity of China through peaceful means and construction is revealed in official statements made by the Nanking leaders.

Dr. H. H. Kung, the Finance Minister, said that, if there was any truth in the reported secessionist movement in Fuhien the Central Government would try to employ every workable means to placate those who were bent on rebellion.

Mr. Wang Ching-mei, President of the Executive Yuan, said in his reply to the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce that nothing was more needed in China than unification and internal peace at present, adding (Continued on Page 10)

PRESERVING THE COMPLEXION

Take Expert Advice About Cosmetics.

GET YOUR SKIN CLASSIFIED

Roughly, there are three main headings regarding the complexion. There is the coarse, sallow skin that tends to greasiness, and whose chief disadvantage is a liability to enlarged pores and consequent blackheads.

There is the normal half-and-half complexion that is easiest of all to keep nice, and there is the very fine one that looks exquisite when well kept, but that gets easily dried and roughened, will not take the "sun," and is a constant source of anxiety to its owner.

Cleanliness First.

The first consideration with all types is that of cleanliness. Different skins need different methods of cleansing. A coarse, greasy skin should be frequently washed in soap and water, and can stand hotter water than the very fine one.

The coarse skin should not have heavy creams massaged into it, while the more this is done for the fine ones better. Fine skins must not be subjected to strong astringents, which are good for the coarse ones.

So get your skin classified if you can not judge it for yourself. And start the cleansing internally by plain diet, plenty of fresh air (especially at night), and as much exercise as can be managed.

A good plan, when it can be managed, is to get expert advice from a dermatologist or a dependable beauty-doctor on the type of cosmetics that suit one's particular skin, and a list of ingredients that must be avoided.

"BUTTONHOLES" OF WOOD

Wooden buttonholes are new; a gardenia, for example, in two colourings of brown, with foliage in a deeper tone (also of wood), is one of the very latest fashion trinkets.

"THE BLOOM OF YOUTH"

But these good looks will fade all too soon unless the health be properly safeguarded. Defective digestion, a sluggish liver, and the resulting imperfect cleansing of the food tract, induce pimples, acne, and other facial blemishes, as well as sallow skin, dark eyes, impure breath.

To aid digestion and ensure daily regularity, which is essential if the eyes are to retain their sparkle and the cheeks their bloom, an occasional dose of Pinkettes is of great assistance. These dainty, tiny laxative pills, by quickly eliminating waste matter from the system, keep the skin fresh and clear, purify the breath, and remove the cause of sick headache and biliousness. Chemists everywhere sell Pinkettes.

Woollen Crepe Novelty

A new material that will appeal by reason of its softness, lightness, and warmth, and also for the fact that the designs and colourings are charming, has just made its appearance. It is a printed crepe flannel, not unlike delaine in texture, and would be ideal for house frocks. It is made in a variety of printed designs in checks and checks allied with stripes.

Chicken Timbale

3 cupfuls minced chicken; 1 cupful soft breadcrumbs; 1/2 cupful milk; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/2 teaspoon pepper; 1 teaspoon minced parsley; 1/2 teaspoon onion juice; 2 tablespoons melted butter; 3 eggs. Boil the crumbs in the milk until thick, add them to the chicken with the seasonings, butter and parsley. Separate the eggs, beat the yolks until light, and add to the chicken. Then fold in the egg whites beaten until stiff. Turn into well-baked custard or timbale cups, set in a pan of hot water and bake until firm, about 35 minutes in a moderate oven. 250 degrees F. Serve with parsley sauce.

Caramel Tapioca

2 1/2 cupfuls milk; 1/2 cupful boiling water; cupful minute tapioca; 1/2 cupful sugar; 1/2 cupful salt; 1/2 cupful sugar; 2 eggs; 1 teaspoon vanilla. Boil the milk, add the tapioca and salt, and cook in a double boiler half an hour. Meanwhile caramelize the sugar, add the boiling water, simmer until smooth, then add to the tapioca mixture and cook until clear. Fold in the eggs slightly beaten and cook a moment longer. Cool, add the cream or golden syrup.

Crab Meat Salad

2 cupfuls crab meat; 1 cup shredded 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 teaspoon paprika; 3 tablespoons French dressing; 1/2 cupful mayonnaise; lettuce, stuffed olives. Pick the crab meat over carefully so as to remove all particles of shell. Add to it the celery, minced pepper and seasonings, then pour the French dressing over and set aside for 1/2 an hour. Serve on individual plates, garnished with lettuce, mayonnaise, and stuffed olives.

Baked Pork Chops

6 thick pork chops; 6 sweet potatoes; 2 tablespoons brown sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/2 teaspoon paprika; 1/4 cupful cold water. Wipe the chops, lay in a baking pan and brown quickly in a hot oven, 375 to 400 degrees F. Parboil the sweet potatoes, peel and cut into halves lengthwise. Sprinkle with the brown sugar, salt, and paprika, place in the pan with the water, and bake 1/4 of an hour in a moderate oven basting frequently. Lay the chops on dish, surround with potatoes and serve with brown gravy and apple sauce.

Sour Cream Pie

1/2 cupful sugar; 2 tablespoons corn flour; a few grains salt; 1 1/2 cupfuls sour cream; 2 eggs; grated rind of 1/2 an orange or lemon; 2 tablespoons icing sugar; 1 pie crust shell. Beat the egg yolks, sugar, salt, cornflour, add the cream and rind of orange. Put the crust into the plate; pour in the filling. Prepare a meringue by beating the whites of the eggs with icing sugar, piling on top of the oven to bake slowly until the meringue is set and delicately coloured about 10 minutes. Serve cold.

Corduroy And Velvet.

Corduroy and velvet are in favour this season. A very smart mode is a white corduroy coat over a trim navy skirt with beret to match.

Newest Trimmings And Colours

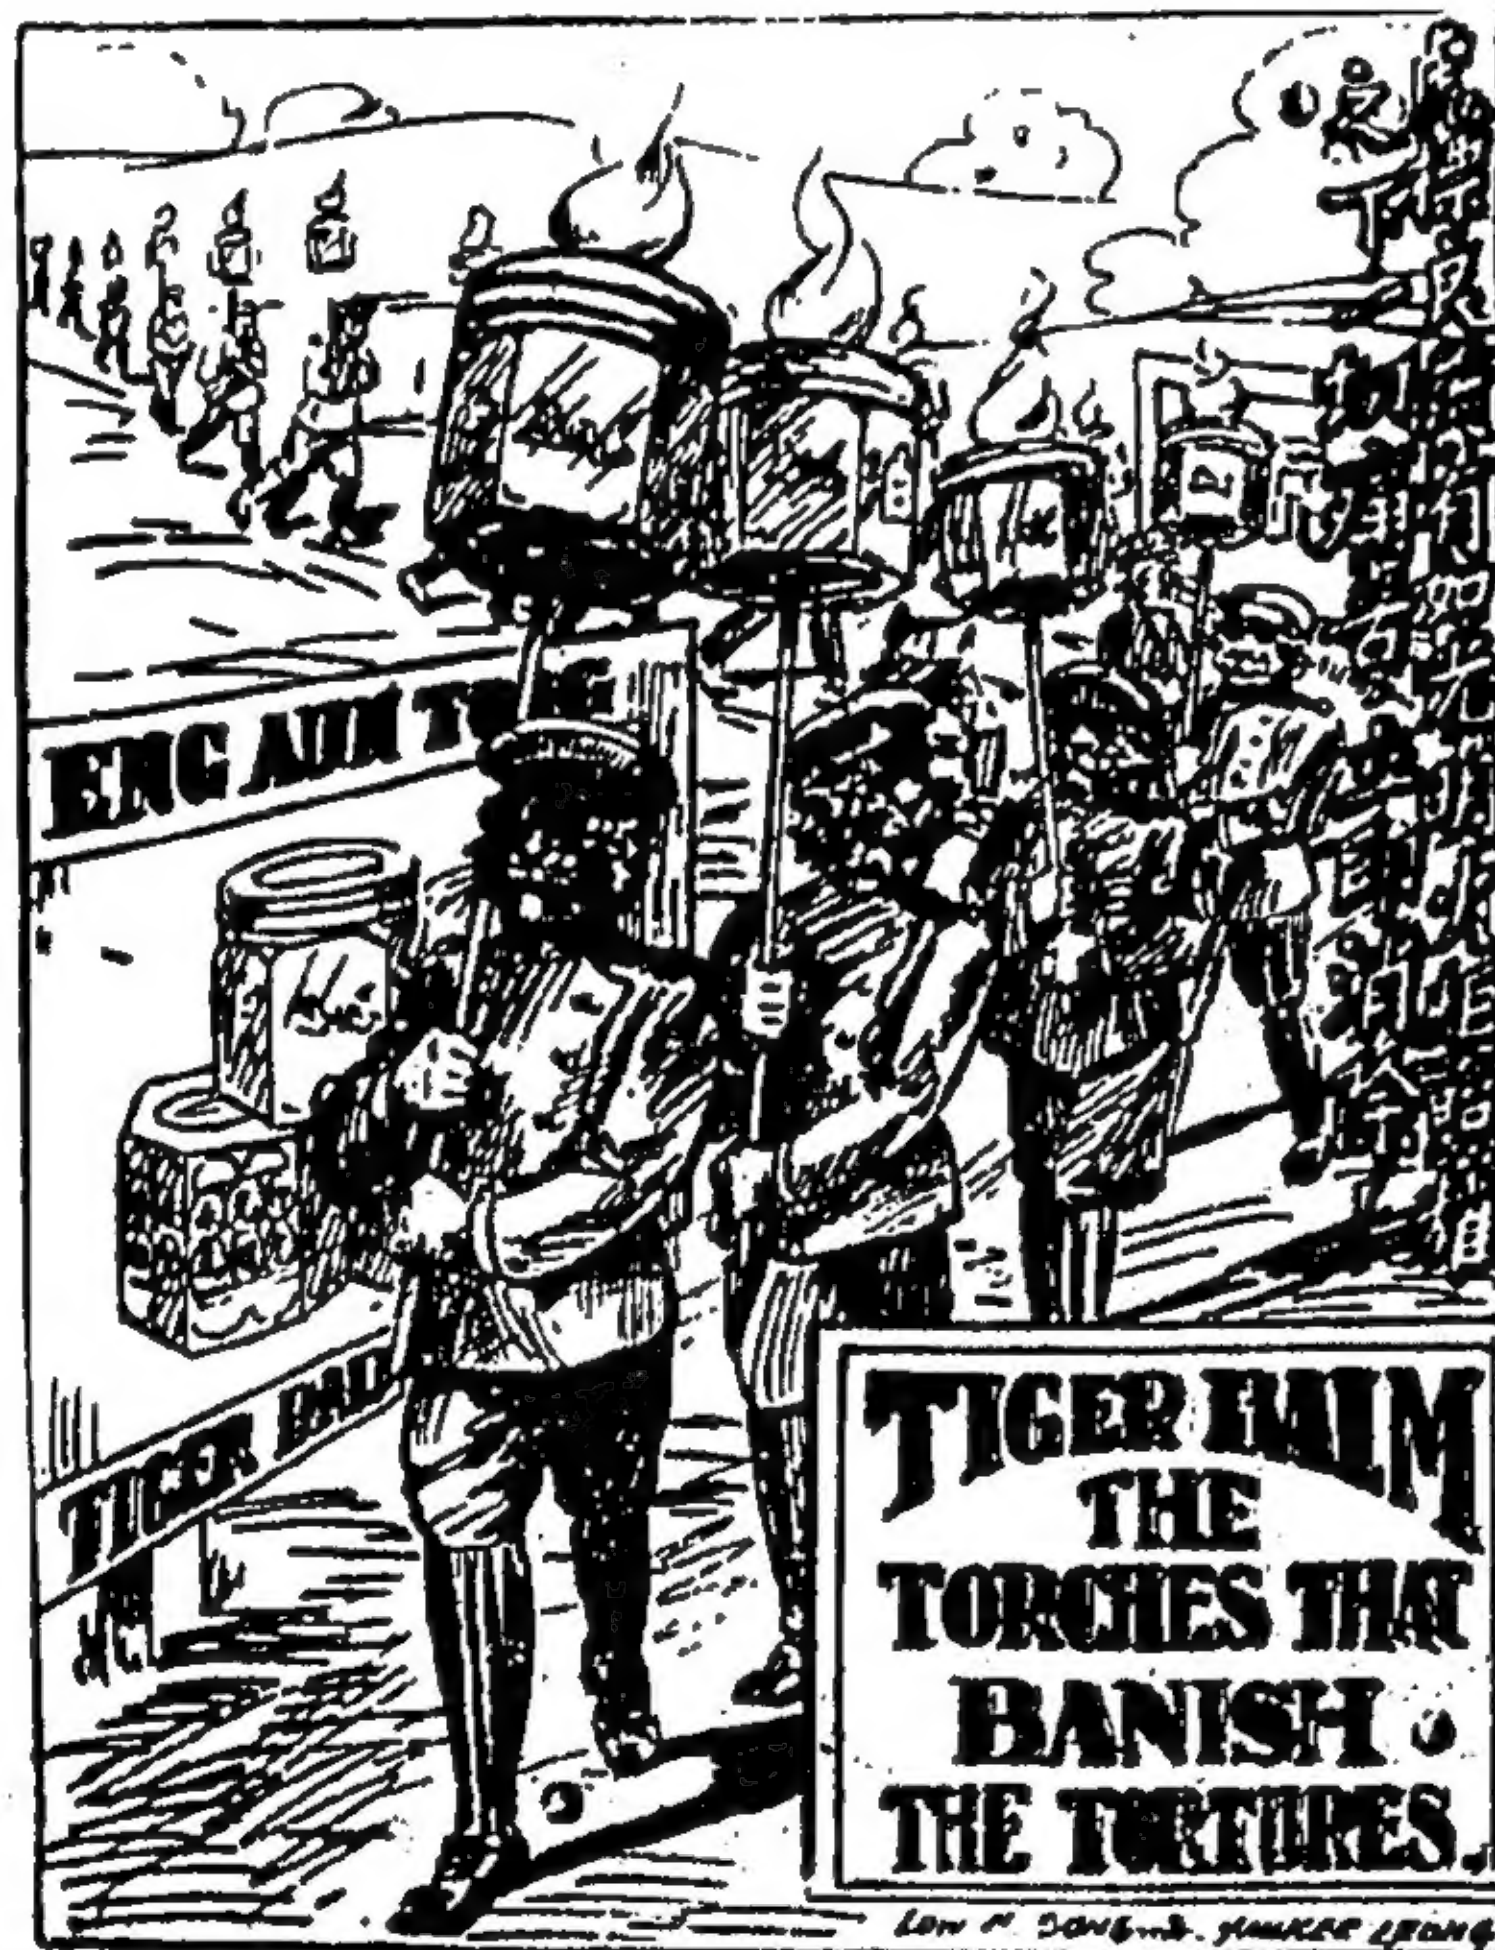

Dress Hints From A Film Stylist.

At a recent dress show the colours shown were all the wall-flower and dahlia shades. Pimpernel red, cyclamen, Copenhagen blue, Botticelli green (this was the most popular), Trisnon pink, violet-blue, water-lily white, black-berry and mulberry, and a good deal of black and white.

The newest trimmings for frocks include quilting, cire-braid embroidery, cartridge and concertina pleating, Tudor and other ruffles, bead girdles for evening, brass buckles and bracelets studded with semi-precious stones, and all kinds of feathers.

It has been stated many times that Englishwomen are much better dressed since they have been following film fashions. Here are hints from one of these "stylists."

Every evening gown will have a train—short ones for dinner dresses, long ones for formal gowns. Capes will be worn instead of tailored evening wraps.

BRIDGE NOTES

The Time Factor In Leading.

What has been called the "time factor" is an essential element in defensive play. The right lead must be made at the right time, and the right time may be, and often is, the first and only opportunity.

With a trickless hand, the object of the initial leader should be to do as little harm as possible to his side. Against a game or slam declaration a trump, as pointed out last week, is often the best "blind" lead. The theory is based upon the supposition that the Declarer and his partner will make all their trumps any way. Therefore, by giving the Declarer the lead at the first trick, no damage has been done, and the opener avoids the disadvantage of "killing" a potential winner in his partner's hand. Declarer is left to be the explorer of how the cards lie.

When, however, the leader has a trick or more of his own, supposing he has an Ace and a King in different suits, should he lead out his Ace at once? Obviously he should not lead away from his Ace or King suit, although there are players who persist in doing so. He has the alternative of leading trumps or a weak suit, hoping later to make both his Ace and his King.

But sometimes the bidding can guide him. If he has reason to suppose that Dummy has supported on ability to ruff the plain suits, his best lead is a trump. If, however, he can make no deductions from the bidding the weak suit lead which has not been mentioned in the bidding is often his best defence.

Here is an example of an inferential and imaginative lead which defeated a slam contract in championship tournament play.

Z opened the bidding with Three Hearts; A No Bid; Y Five Hearts; B No Bid; Z Six Hearts. All pass. What should A lead? From the bidding he has little to guide him. His obvious opening is the Ace of Spades in the hope that his partner will provide a trick to defeat the contract. But the disadvantage of the lead is that it may well set up a trick or tricks in Dummy or Declarer's hand. In this example it is fatal.

A, however, after due thought, elected to lead the Queen of Clubs. It was not a haphazard choice. He argued that it was unlikely to do harm, however bad his partner's hand, and it might mislead Z as to the position of the Knave of Clubs, as A might be placed as leading from Q.J. It is apparent that this lead, and this lead only, could defeat the contract.

Another lead of an unorthodox nature comes within the category of deceptive leads which are designed to mislead the Declarer of fectively and are based upon processes of deduction.

The hand is given by Mr. P. Hal Sims, and Mrs. Sims was A.

Z deals and bids One Spade; A No bid; Y Three Spades; B No Bid; Z Four Spades. All pass.

A has a difficult opening. One trick is certain, a second—the Ace of Clubs—is almost certain. But where are the other two tricks to be made to defeat the contract? Was there any chance that B could take two tricks? Only apparently if he could take a Club trick and also ruff one. A therefore, departing from copy-book maxims, led the Three of Clubs.

Z was confronted with an absolute guess. The probability was that A had led from a suit Queen high rather than from the Ace. So Z put up Dummy's 10. B won with the Queen and led a Diamond. Z still did not realize the danger, and, instead of getting rid at once of a Club by playing three rounds of Hearts, he led a Spade, permitting A to defeat the contract by leading Ace and another Club which B ruffed.

If this had not occurred in actual play it might be regarded as an invented example. A, it may be said, had no business to make such a lead, and by so doing might even fail to make his Ace of Clubs. It would be so if Y or Z had held a singleton King of Clubs. That is true enough; and, in ordinary circumstances, A's lead might be regarded, at first sight, as the worst that could be made.

A's lead in this case, you may argue, was only "clever" because it happened to come off. Analysis, however, will show that it was based upon a possibility. And it

KING'S HEAD FOR NINEPENCE

Mummified Relic Of French Monarchy.

BOUGHT BY PHOTOGRAPHER

Paris. What is said to be the head of a King of France is now lying in the studio of a Montmartre photographer, according to an article in the periodical "Vu".
The mummified head, is kept in a box lined with purple velvet. The photographer bought it, at an auction in 1919, for three francs (about ninepence at current rates) intending to set it up in his studio as an unusual ornament.

On examining the head more closely, he discovered that the skin of the neck was impregnated with a dark blue dye. History relates that the neck and chest of Henri IV, who reigned over France from 1589 to 1610, were undoubtedly dyed before his body was embalmed, in order to hide certain tattoo-marks definitely unsuitable for preservation.
The head also bears a mole which is shown in portraits of the King, and an unusual scar which closely resembles one known to have been borne by him.—Reuter.

proved to be the only lead that would defeat the contract. It may appear that the same result would have been achieved if A had opened properly with his Ace of Clubs. On the Ace led, B's Queen falls, and A then leads a second Club to give B his ruff. But this play will not succeed, as A cannot then be given the lead in time for B to make a second ruff. Whatever B leads at trick three, Z gets in and draws B's only remaining trump.

Do not, however, suppose that a lead away from an Ace is to be generally recommended. On the contrary, as a rule it is the very worst lead that can be made. If you lead from a suit Ace high, the Ace should be led, and the longer the suit the greater the necessity. Departure from the rule is only justifiable when the position is desperate and you can foresee a possible situation which offers a chance, even a remote chance, of success.

"TOPAZE"—CENTRAL THEATRE

John Barrymore has one of the funniest roles of his career as a simple schoolmaster in "Topaze," the film version of the Broadway success, now showing at the Central Theatre.

Myrna Loy is the leading lady and is responsible for much of the success of this daring comedy.

It has some venturesome scenes and, added to clever portrayal, promises real good entertainment.

The supporting cast includes Reginald Mason, Albert Conti, Jobyna Howland, Jackie Searl, Frank Reicher and Lowden Adams.

"NIGHT AFTER NIGHT"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

Starring George Raft, "Night After Night," the latest Paramount attraction, now showing at the Queen's Theatre, is a story of a queer love romance between a Manhattan speakeasy proprietor and a Park Avenue debutante, played by Miss Constance Cummings.

The entire action of the film takes place in the speakeasy, where the society girl, revisiting the scene of her childhood, meets Raft. A queer romance develops which is brought to an unusual climax after a series of startling events.

The supporting cast includes such screen celebrities as Mae West, Wynne Gibson and Alison Skipworth.

"CLEANING UP"—KING'S THEATRE

Featuring George Gee, the famous stage comedian, "Cleaning Up," a lively British comedy is now showing at the King's Theatre.

The story deals with the adventures of a Lord's son who decides to work for his living instead of marrying an heiress. He gets a job as a salesman for the Mop-Tup Vacuum Cleaner Company and the amusing complications that arise are well handled by this clever actor.

Supporting George Gee is Betty Astell, the beautiful English film star. Davy Burnaby, the famous Co-Optimist, Barbara Gott and Muriel George.

"THE BIG CAGE"—MAJESTIC THEATRE

Combining real dangers with thrills of the type rarely provided by a motion picture, "The Big Cage," featuring Clyde Beatty, called the world's greatest trainer of wild animals, is the current attraction at the Majestic Theatre.

The film presents a circus drama which is based on the life of Beatty, whose career, fraught as it is with danger, has been an exciting one.

"MOONSHINE" ON DECLINE IN AMERICA

Beer Improves New York Drinking.

CRIME DECREASE REPORTED

New York.

Beer—just plain 32 per cent beer—is working wonders in up-State sections of New York according to reports sent to the headquarters of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Beer has improved drinking conditions as well as law and order, the reports say, and has pleased "Drys" as well as "Wets." Moreover, it has superseded the old "moonshine" liquor, "bathtub gin" and "needle beer." ("Needle beer" was beer treated with ether to give it a greater "kick").

Of 89 up-state County districts reports, only 11 recorded any arrests for violation of the beer regulations, and the grand total of the arrests was "only" twenty-nine, says the New York Herald Tribune.

In Long Island, the Nassau County Board stated that the police "report a decrease in crime, especially in drunken drivers."

Orleans County, upstate, reported that beer has practically ruined the manufacture and sale of "moonshine" liquor and "bathtub gin" and "needle beer." Speakeasies are few and far between now and most of the backstreet "dives" where the young people with drinking tendencies assembled have been closed.

In Greene County it was reported that many former speakeasies which formerly were run in dark, mysterious rooms, are to be opened to the public view and their interiors painted, cleaned and made habitable for anyone, says the New York Herald Tribune.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI ALL OUT 121: MALAYA TRIUMPH BY 50 RUNS

CHAMPIONS' MAMAK WIN BY 8 TO 0

9th Battery Swept Off Their Feet.

GURBACHAN SINGH SCORES FIVE TIMES

Dyke Plays With Eye Well Bandaged

(By STICKS)

SCORING no fewer than eight goals without reply against the 9th Battery in a Mamak Tournament match at Sookunpoo yesterday, the Radio Sports Club, last season's champions, registered their third win in as many games this season.

With a splendid goal average 7 goals per match the Radio are now third to the Central British Association and the United on goal average only.

Gurbachan Singh, the Radio's prolific scorer, was in great form, scoring five of the eight goals, six of which were scored in the first half. Awar Singh (2) and Kallwant Singh (1) scored the remaining goals.

The fast Radio forward line were too much for the Battery defence who were unable to cope with the continuous attacks. Nash, a newcomer in goal to the Battery, played well in goal.

Dyke Plays Again

Towards the end of the second half the Battery recovered somewhat and actually pressed the Radio's goal, forcing a corner.

Pte. J. S. Dyke, the South Wales Borderers-Radio player who was injured in a friendly match on Wednesday, was again in action with swollen eye which was covered with sticking plaster.

Mohinder Singh and Man Singh, the Radio's regular left half and goal-keeper respectively, were absentees, being replaced by Dyke and Sargin Singh.

Radio: Sargin Singh, P. Singh, J. S. Dyke, Jaggett Singh, M. H. Hussain, J. S. Dyke, Altar Singh, G. Singh, Awar Singh, Kallwant Singh and E. A. Kemp (Captain).

9th Battery: Nash, Maddison, Syme, Hunt, Wellington, Furness, Bessant, L. Laine (Captain), Worthington, Gibbons and Waller.

WILLIS DOES DAMAGE

JUST MISSES HOT TRICK

"Torrre" Wilson Hits Two Sixes.

MALAYA WIN SERIES

Shanghai collapsed sensationally after lunch to-day, their remaining six wickets falling for 43 runs in just under 50 minutes to give Malaya victory by 50 runs in the final match of the Triangular Interport Cricket series.

G. Willis, who with V. Croome and R. Morgan, is leaving for Singapore by the Neuralia at 4 p.m. this afternoon, caused the damage. He took 5 of the 6 wickets to fall for 31 runs of which 16 were made in three hits by "Torrre" Wilson.

Wilson (18) and Sinclair (17) added 31 valuable runs for the ninth wicket before Wilson skied one into the slips and one run later the innings was closed for 121.

Malaya have thus won the series which has resulted as follows:—

Malaya beat Hong Kong by 14 runs.

Malaya beat Shanghai by 50 runs.

Hong Kong beat Shanghai by 117 runs.

Malaya have made a clean sweep of all their games, having beaten the United Services and Kowloon. The team leave for Singapore to-morrow.

The Interport Dinner is being held in the Gloucester Building to-night when the players will gather for the last time.

The next match is that between Shanghai and Kowloon on Sunday. On Tuesday the Northerners will play the United Services to conclude their programme.

Mayhew played a maiden over to Willis and Stokes opened the scoring with a single off Gill's first ball from the Supreme Court end. Mayhew got the bowler away to the square leg boundary in the same over. In the fast bowler's next over Stokes got him away to leg for 3, and the 10 went up after 8 minutes' play.

In Willis' next over a ball cuffed up badly and Stokes would have been caught at second slip had Gill not slipped in getting to an easy catch.

Shortly after Stokes very nearly played a ball from Willis hard on to a wicket. The first ball of Gill's next over he played too soon, but the ball landed harmlessly just in front of Morgan at mid on.

Encouraged by his good fortune he hit three successive boundaries off Gill, late-cutting one and reaching the rails on the leg side on the two other occasions.

Stokes attempted to chop a ball from Willis in the next over and played it on to his wicket. 39-1-28 after half an hour's play.

Wicket Wears Well.

Hamilton brought on Jonkiss for Gill at 40 and the fast medium bowler was played for two singles, though he was not bowling a good length.

The pitch was wearing well, and with Willis keeping a very good length, only Gill was "popping" them.

Croome appealed for a catch behind the sticks off Pat Madar in Jonkiss' second over, but the batsman was given the verdict.

The 50 went up after 45 minutes' play, but three runs later Mayhew attempted to sweep Jonkiss to leg and was well caught by Eu Chow Teik off a slider at short leg. 53-2-21.

Mayhew had batted solidly for over 45 minutes, scoring the majority of his runs on the leg side.

The first hour's play produced 70 runs.

With both batsmen playing Speldewinds with confidence Hamilton brought on Gill at the Naval Yard end at 78. In his second over Booth was hit in the face when trying to pull a risish ball, but pluckily resumed after attention. Booth fell to a catch behind the wicket in the fast bowler's next over. 78-3-18.

L. F. STOKES scored 28 valuable runs for Shanghai this morning.

"Spot" At Naval Yard End. He had placed a sound knock after his shaky start and was out to a ball that pitched on a "spot" at the Naval Yard end and which came up to flick his glove.

Contrary to expectation the luncheon interval was not taken at this juncture, though it was 12-28 and Leach lost his wicket for a "duck" off the last ball of the over and his first 78-4-0.

Pat Madar was 7 not out at lunch. "Hot Trick" Just Missed.

Willis almost took a "hot trick" when he clearly beat Jenkin with the first ball of his next over after lunch. The next ball he secured an obstruction appeal. 78-5-0.

Willis had thus taken 3 wickets with four balls.

Sam Isaacs hit a single and a leg boundary off Gill before he sent one right into Gibson's hands at long off. 85-6-0.

In Willis' next over Pat Madar, who had defended stubbornly, was brilliantly caught at second slip by Eu Chow Teik, the fieldman taking a very low catch. 85-7-8.

Sinclair was lucky when he edged one from Willis just over the slips heads.

Willis Hits Sixes.

When Simpson returned a simple catch to Gill at 89 the game looked all over, but "Torrre" Wilson, let off by Eu Chow Teik through over-eagerness, set about the bowling in a very forceful manner.

In one over from Willis he hit two sixes on the leg side and a four through extra cover off successive balls, and then was caught in the slips by Gibson off a slider. 120-9-18.

The end came one run later when Sinclair, who had hit Willis for two successive fours on the leg side, gave Jonkiss a low catch at mid on which was accepted.

Thus in less than 60 minutes play Shanghai lost their last six wickets for 43 runs. Willis, the fast bowler, was mainly responsible, his last spell, which started with the dismissal of Booth and Leach with successive balls, returning the following figures:

SHANGHAI MAY FIND 172 RUNS HARD TO GET

Croome Plays Very Fine Knock.

MALAYA FORTUNATE DURING YESTERDAY'S PLAY

(By ATHOLE).

Malaya are making a determined bid for Interport honours and Shanghai have been set the difficult task of securing 172 runs in the fourth innings to avoid the wooden spoon and make a triple tie of the Triangular series.

The luck was, however, with Malaya all day yesterday. First came the doubtful looking dismissals of Donald Leach and Sam Isaacs, and then Burn, who scored 41, was misaid off successive balls from Pat Madar by "Torrre" Wilson and Leach when he was 15. R. N. Hamilton played a gallant captain's innings, but he lifted the ball perilously once or twice in his innings of 60.

With 107 for 2 on the board Shanghai should have secured a bigger lead than 27 on the first innings, and they would have done had Sinclair not sent Jenkin back on the latter's call for a certain run out. Sinclair refused to leave his crease and both batsmen were caught at the same end. Jenkin was then 28 and using the long handle to advantage.

Shanghai's Bad Luck

Leach was unfortunate to be given out to a catch on the leg side by Mayhew which looked as if it came off the batsman's leg, while Isaacs looked very much as if he was bowled off the wicket-keeper's pads. It was a big misfortune for Shanghai.

Gill bowled extraordinarily well yesterday morning and was not favoured with much luck in his first spell which produced.

O. M. R. W.
16 3 60 2

Croome, who is suffering from sinusitis, batted very pluckily, though suffering great pain after he had given his right knee another jar. In fact I think he played one of the best innings of the whole series when collecting 56 out of 60 in 35 minutes.

His carpet drives on the off and on and through the covers were beautifully timed. In one over from Sam Isaacs he hit three boundaries, all of which were the result of perfect strokes. Had he been fit he would never have been out to the ball that resulted in his downfall. He hit seven boundaries.

Hamilton's Useful Knock

Hamilton, who scored his 60 out of 121 in 74 minutes, hit five boundaries and three 3's in an innings in which upish shots were frequent. He is a batsman who is not afraid to hit the pitched up ball, and, though he has an ugly style, he has a very good defence when called upon. Jenkin dismissed him with a very fine low catch in the long field.

I was sorry to see Alvis out to a "blob," but it was a very fine ball that beat him. Pat Madar bowled very well indeed, but with no luck.

The wicket is not wearing well, and unless Shanghai get away to a good start, 172 runs is going to prove a formidable task.

PREMIER LEAGUE SOCCER IN FULL SWING

SAINTS EXPECTED TO BEAT EAST LANCES

SOUTH CHINA JUNIORS TO CLASH WITH BORDERERS

(By OUTSIDE LEFT)

FOR the first time this season a full First Division League soccer programme will be featured this week-end. Twelve First Division, four Second and three Third Division teams will be seen in action.

The East Lancashire Regiment, who have withdrawn from the Second and Third Divisions of the League, make their First Division debut on Sunday when they meet St. Joseph's at Caroline Hill.

From reports of the East Lanes team in the North the Saints have every hopes of garnering two points, but the newcomers may spring a surprise.

The Saints, however, have improved considerably and are to-day one of South China's most serious challengers to the Senior League Championship.

ASH RETURNS TO LINCOLNS SOCCER TEAM

Cork And Hocquard Playing Against Navy

Lt. Ash, the veteran Lincoln's all-rounder, is replacing Edmondson at left back against the Navy in the premier soccer league on Sunday. Ash has been absent since the end of last season with an injured knee.

Cork and Hocquard, injured in the Services game last week, will return to the attack and the leaders will be thus at full strength.

For the League leaders A. J. Osmund, the Colony champion, compiled a break of 58. M. M. Silva made 48 and 38, and F. A. Gill gained his fourth amazing victory when he scored his 150 in seven visits to the table recording an average of 21.4.

The Lincolns, present League leaders will again have to reproduce the form they displayed against the Borderers if they are to keep at the top of the League when they meet the formidable Navy combination on Sunday at Sookunpoo.

Their form against the Athletic last Sunday was not good enough to combat the deadly Navy forwards.

The Borderers, who have disappointed this season, should strengthen their position when they meet the Artillery at the Valley to-morrow, while the Athletic and South China should both collect points at the expense of the Recreio and the Police.

South China made no mistake last week in their encounter against the Recreio.

S. China v Borderers

In the Second Division a great struggle should result from the encounter between South China and the Borderers, the latter being ahead on the table with one more win to their credit. South China, who came second in this division last season, should win to-morrow's game and thus secure the lead in the championship race won last year by the Athletic.

The Athletic have fared badly this season and may drop more points when they meet the Navy to-morrow at the Valley.

The Navy should be able to field a very strong eleven now that the Fleet is in port.

In the other games the Artillery and the Lincolns should get the better of the Young Indians and Kowloon, respectively.

In the Third Division all the visiting teams should garner wins.

The following is my forecast:—

SATURDAY

Kowloon v CLUB
BORDERERS v Artillery
ATHLETIC v Recreio
S. CHINA v Police
NAVY v Second Division
S. CHINA v Athletic
ARTILLERY v Young Indians
Kowloon v LINCOLNS
R.A.S.C. v S. CHINA
Radio v R.A.M.C.

SUNDAY

Victorious Army Fifteen Weakened

(By SCRUM HALF)

Smarting under their heavy defeat at the hands of the Navy last week and seeking revenge for their earlier defeat by the Army the Club have made five changes in their fifteen for to-morrow's Rugby match against the Army at Sookunpoo, commencing at 3.30 p.m.

W. H. B. Rigg has been brought back into the three-quarter line to partner J. J. Ferguson and form the Interport wing. Mike Turner has reported fit after the Bank game on Monday and will partner "Jake" Selby instead of J. Hutchison, who is a reserve this week.

D. M. Wheeler and S. H. Garrod have been taken out of the pack and R. Stillard and F. R. Burch will again be seen in action. The injury to G. C. Moutrie last Saturday has proved more serious than expected, and in his absence K. A. Munro will play in the back row of the scrum.

The Army will be without Lt. Galletly, Lt. Hamilton, Lt. Crewe Read, and Cpl. Trant, their hooker, and are experimenting with Pte. Walters at fly-half. He is one of their best wing forwards, possessing a fine turn of speed and a safe pair of hands.

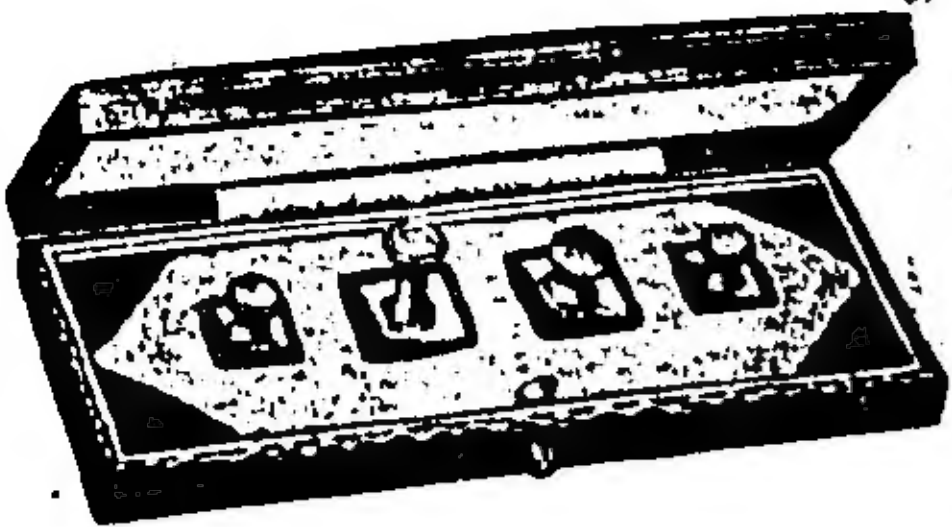

The following are the teams: Club: J. J. P. Witham; J. J. Ferguson; W. H. B. Rigg; R. H. Griffiths and G. P. Lammer; M. W. Turner and J. A. R. Selby (Captain); R. Stillard; I. H. Bradford; A. F. Walcott; F. R. Burch; D. A. Cumming; G. A. Stewart; D. McLeish and A. E. Munro. Reserve: J. Hutchison, D. M. Wheeler and S. H. Garrod. British Army: Lt. Birt (R.A.); Lt. A. G. Martin (S.W.B.); Pte. Simmonds (S.W.B.); Lt. Roeder (Lincolns); and Cpl. Addison (S.W.B.); Pte. Walters (S.W.B.) and L/Cpl. Hewitt (S.W.B.); L/Cpl. Hardy (S.W.B.); Pte. Jones (S.W.B.); Lt. Ebert (R.A.); Pte. Watkins (S.W.B.); Pte. Ginn (S.W.B.); Pte. Lloyd (S.W.B.); Pte. Jones (S.W.B.); Gnr. Barracough (R.A.) and Lt. Metcalf (R.A.). Referee: Rev. E. G. Evans. (R.N.)

ARGYLLS AND SUFFOLK WIN
At Shamshuipo yesterday afternoon the detachment of Argylls proved successful when they beat "D" Company, Lincolns, by 2 goals to nil, Kelly and McGaw being the scorers.

This game was followed by a friendly match between the Lincolns and H.M.S. Suffolk, the naval team winning by the odd goal in three. Toyns gave the Lincolns the lead in the first half, but two goals by O'Neill on the resumption gave the Suffolk a narrow victory.

C.B.A. BEAT INCOGNITOS

At King's Park yesterday the Central British Association, playing only ten men, defeated the Incognitos by an only goal scored in the second half by R. H. Carroll. Play was very fast and even throughout.

MEDWAY MAKES DEFEAT

In their first Mamak Tournament match H.M.S. Medway were defeated by the Police by an only goal scored in the second half by Perkins.

SAINTS AND MULE CORPS DRAW

Playing a man short, the St. Andrew's Club hockey team drew with the Mule Corps in a friendly game on the Marina ground yesterday, sharing two goals.

N. A. E. Mackay netted first for the Saints, and Bas Khan replied for the Mule Corps in the second half.

ARMY SPORTSMEN ON NEURALIA

Interport Cricketer Leaves This Afternoon.

ENGINEERS LOSE BEST BILLIARDS PLAYER AND LINCOLNS A GOOD SOCCER FORWARD

Lieut. A. C. Hamilton, Interport cricketer, and centre three quarter in the Army and Borderers Rugby fifteen, is leaving the Colony for home by the Neuralia this afternoon. He has played for the Colony against Shanghai in Interport Cricket on three occasions.

Other sporting personalities who are leaving by the same boat include Captain F. R. Williams (Lincolns) S. M. Floyd (R.E.), S/Sgt. Saville (R.E.) and Cpl. Harding (Lincolns).

Captain Williams, who has been Sports Officer of the Lincolns since his arrival in the Colony, is a keen sportsman himself, having represented his Regiment at Football, Cricket, Hockey and Billiards. He will, however, be returning to the Colony next summer.

S. M. Floyd is the No. 1 Billiards player in the Engineers also, and the equally good goal.

EVERTON PUZZLED BY JAMES

Arsenal Win Charity Shield Match.

BIRKETT'S TWO GOALS

BY J. T. BOLTON

London, Oct. 19. THE Arsenal have added the F. A. Charity Shield to their champion trophy, for at Goodison Park yesterday they beat Everton, the Cup-holders, by 3 goals to nothing in a game of much clever football. Some of the competitive element of League games was absent, but the match on the whole gained rather than lost by that fact.

For instance, 18,000 spectators must have rejoiced over the tricks of Alex James. It was not all gallery play by Arsenal's star forward, however, for he occasionally made a masterpass and switched the attack in a way which completely bewildered Everton's defenders. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to sum up the difference in the teams by mention of the name of James.

The cupholders had no one to equal Arsenal's inside-left in the art of making easy openings. Lucky Opening Goal.

There was a touch of luck about the Arsenal's first goal after thirty-six minutes—James merely headed a weak clearance by Cook to present Birkett with an easy chance. The second goal, sixteen minutes after the interval, was solely due to the genius of James, for he left Bowden with nothing to do except steer the ball past the goalkeeper.

When it is added that Birkett and Hill each had good shots which came back from rounded goalposts, it will be realised how keen was the Arsenal's attack.

Not once did Moss in the Arsenal goal seem likely to be beaten. The trouble with Everton was that they developed the bad habit of trying to make progress by backward passes. Such methods merely allowed the Arsenal defenders to concentrate in front of goal.

Obviously, it will be a happy day for Everton when Dean returns to centre-forward. I understand, by the way, this will be on Saturday week and not against the 'Spurs' this week-end.

White Falls At Centre. While is a useful utility player, but it seemed to me he has played so long at centre-half that he can no longer hold an attack together. Neither of Everton's inside forwards could play his part, while Maile had Stein completely subdued. The best Everton player was Britton—a splendid constructive half-back.

Coleman played at inside-right for the Arsenal, and Bowden at centre-forward, but I thought that these two players might have been reversed with advantage, as Bowden's artistry was not finished off with strong shooting.

Hill was at outside-left, and when the Arsenal are in difficulty with this position they can confidently rely on his established half-back to fill the breach. Apart from other good work, Hill sent in one shot very late in the game which the goalkeeper could only push out at full-stretch for Birkett to score the third goal.

LEAGUE SOCCER CHANGES.

To-morrow's Fixtures.

The following league soccer matches have been postponed:—

Division III.
R.A.M.C. v. R.E.
University v. Recrejo.
The following match has been arranged:—

Division III.
Radio v. R.A.M.C., Athletic ground, at 2.45 p.m. (Brought forward from 23-12-33.)

Division II.
Royal Navy v. Athletic will now be played at King's Park.

S/Sgt. Saville has represented the Army in the Lawn Tennis League.

"Geordie" Harding, the Lincolns brilliant inside right soccer forward, will be greatly missed by the present leaders. Called upon last Sunday to occupy the outside right position, he excelled himself against the Athletic and was largely instrumental in bringing about the equalising goal.

Arsenal's Goal-Scorers

Eight Forwards Have Amazing Aggregate.

THREE LIKELY CENTURIONS

Eight forwards now in the service of the Arsenal share the amazing aggregate of 971 Football League goals, and in the entire history of the tournament, which covers a period of 45 years, no other club ever showed anything even approaching a parallel.

The eight players, together with the League goals they have obtained since the start of their careers right down to date, are: Jack 265, Dunne 149, Lambert 116, Coleman 98, Bastin 93, Hulme 92, Bowden 89, and James 69.

It is a football certainty that 971 will be taken to the 1,000 mark long before this season ends, just as it is probable that Coleman, Bastin and Hulme will join Jack, Dunne and Lambert in becoming centurions.

WALES WEAKENED.

Manage To Draw With Ireland.

Belfast, Nov. 4.

Weakened through the refusal of the English clubs to release their best players, Wales today held Ireland to a creditable draw of one goal each at Belfast before a crowd of 20,000.

Wales were more aggressive and their forwards worked cleverly but the good work was spoiled by weak shooting and the Irish defence excelled against a strong attack. Glover, the Welsh centre-forward, was the most outstanding player on the field but missed a chance of scoring in the first minute of the game but atoned in the fifth minute while the defenders were appealing for offside.

At half-time there was no further score. Subsequently, Ireland played up with determination and the Welsh backs were put under severe pressure. Jones equalised for Ireland in the tenth minute after the resumption and there was no further score.

TOTTENHAM SHOULD BEAT LEEDS AWAY

Arsenal May Displace Huddersfield.

CHELSEA'S DIRE STRUGGLE FOR POINTS

Southern Leaders Clash

(BY RANGER)

In to-morrow's Home Football programme the Spurs should register a win at Leeds and retain the leadership of the premier Division, but the Arsenal will probably displace Huddersfield for the second place.

Arsenal have an easy task when Stoke visit Highbury, whereas Huddersfield will have stiff opposition at Manchester against the City team.

Chelsea are already in great danger of relegation and they are not likely to collect any points against West Bromwich at the Hawthorns.

In the Second Division, Grimsby and Port Vale have a three points lead in the promotion race and should both strengthen their positions.

Grimsby, who have won their last five games, should return from Bury with two points, while Port Vale, who with Queen's Park Rangers, is the only team to possess a 100 per cent. home record, should account for Brentford.

Fulham and West Ham meet in a London "Derby", and I favour the Hammers. Fulham who have not registered a win in their last six games, have been sorely handicapped by injuries. The Cottagers may, however, snatch a surprise point.

In the Third Division (Southern) the leaders of the league clash when Charlton play Norwich in the East Anglian city.

Chesterfield and Motherwell, who hold substantial leads in their respective leagues, should record wins.

FOOTBALL FORM GUIDE

Comprehensive Table Showing Form of Clubs at A Glance

A comprehensive guide to the form of all the major English Football League clubs will be found in the tables given below. To assist in comparing the teams, details of how they have fared in their last five matches are given. The letters W, L and D indicate matches won, lost or drawn, respectively. Games played at home are shown in capital letters and away games in small type. The figures in brackets denote the position held by that team at the conclusion of last season. The asterisk indicates a promoted team and the sword signifies a relegated team.

The League positional tables give home and away details and include all matches played to date.

The Soviet's "Power Crisis."

There are many remarkable passages in an article in the official organ of the heavy industries in Soviet Russia. The bitter lamentation over the "power crisis" in that country mentions that in the Moscow district alone, breakdowns at the power stations now average as many as three a day, and calculates that the financial loss to the local electrical industry amounts to some £3,000,000 during the past six months. This is taking no account, it is emphasised, of the losses to factory industries depending on the steady supply of power. These facts are given by the Russian journal as typical of the state of the U.S.S.R. electrical industry in general. It might be commented that this is an old story. Two months ago this same technical journal published a scathing account of the conditions at the new industrial city of Magnitogorsk, which was represented as being clogged with rubbish and scrapped machinery. Two facts, however, are notable in the present-day situation. The first is that the journal cited says not a word about that deliberate wrecking of plant which for so long has been alleged by the Soviet authorities as an explanation of the breakdown in heavy industry. Nothing is said of the destruction formerly charged against imported foreign technicians, such as the Metro-Vickers experts whose so-called trial was so elaborately staged eight months ago. Nor is the trouble now put down to the treachery of Russian engineers, of whom a batch were "tried" and heavily sentenced about the same time. This pretence is now dropped, and it is plainly confessed that the incurable inefficiency of untrained Russian workmen is the real cause of the breakdown. The second fact is that, in spite of the vehement reforming efforts of the Commissariat of heavy industry, matters have gone from bad to worse since the process of suppressing imaginary plots of sabotage ended. It is this background of confessed failure that gives a special significance to the complete collapse for that is what it has quite recently come to—of friendly relations between the U.S.S.R. and Germany. Since the Nazi campaign against German "Marxists" began, those relations have steadily grown worse. Each Government has complained of the treatment of its nationals by the other. In Notes of Increasing acidity Moscow denies that Germans are being expelled from Russia; Berlin denies that they are being officially called home. The fact remains that they have left or are leaving, if only because a hostile environment makes life in Russia impossible for them. Yet of all the countries to which Moscow has turned for vitally necessary expert assistance, and for the supply of machinery, Germany has been—mainly because of her proximity to the Soviet frontier—the most important. She has secured the lion's share of orders, and is owed at this moment tens of millions sterling on account of them. It seemed an excellent arrangement while it lasted. It may be that Moscow will consider that there is still much to be said for it, if a rupture of relations can be made to justify a refusal to pay. But the Russian industrial breakdown continues, and the most convenient source of expert assistance is cut off. Germany, on the other hand, has lost an extensive export trade, and may lose a large part of the fruits of it. There could be no more striking illustration of the interweaving of business with diplomacy than the case of the Russo-German quarrel.

Science And The Race's Future.

It is a sign of the times that a physician of the eminence of Lord Horder should urge upon public attention measures for the voluntary sterilisation of the unfit and for the provision of instruction in birth control. Lord Horder in the House of Lords argued from eugenic principles. He quoted the familiar figures which show that one in 120 of Britain's present population is mentally defective. Modern humanity preserves the weakling and the defective. Modern restriction of families limits the offspring of the superior types. Lord Horder, therefore, considers that the race must deteriorate unless we now prevent the multiplication of undesirables. His protest that the prolongation of life by medical aid is just as much an interference with nature as sterilisation or birth control is scientifically sound. He cannot expect that it will overcome the repugnance with which on religious and ethical grounds many people condemn those processes. It should, however, be emphasised that he advocates no interference with the right of the individual to determine his own camp. In Germany compulsory sterilisation has been given legislative sanction. The voluntary system has been operative for a long time in different parts of the world. Last year the Minister of Health appointed a committee to examine this among other phases of the problem of the unfit, and a report may shortly be expected. The problem is grave, future of humanity.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

The Whisky Boom

Unless America's taste in whisky has changed, the whisky boom in Scotland, caused by the impending repeal of Prohibition and the shortage of matured home stocks, will affect the various distilling centres unequally.

Americans preferred their whisky, whether rye or Bourbon, to have a very strong flavour. The nearest approach to it in Scotland is manufactured in the island of Islay, where the "self whiskies," that is, the unblended products of single distilleries, are heavily impregnated with peat smoke.

Islay has suffered less from the depression than any other whisky area. Its two most famous distilleries are Lagavulin and Ardbeg, both tiny clachans on the edge of the sea. Its population amounts to about 5000, and it has been calculated that, allowing for the whisky duty, its inhabitants are taxed at the rate of £500 per head per annum.

The Plight of Campbeltown
After the Islay "selfs," the peatiest whiskies are the Highland malts from Speyside and Glenlivet. All these distilleries should profit by the American boom.

On the other hand, Campbeltown on the Mull of Kintyre, which used to be one of the greatest whisky centres in Scotland and now has a higher percentage of unemployed than any other borough in Great Britain, will gain little.

Its 32 distilleries used to manufacture a strong, clear, almost tasteless spirit which was much used in blending. Lately its place has been largely taken by the cheaper Lowland grain whiskies.

but reliable evidence that it is of increasing gravity is not easily to be found. There are high authorities who have pronounced that sterilisation would not be attended with any considerable diminution in the incidence of mental deficiency. It is not at all clear that science has yet the ability to decide what are the types which we should strive to foster, still less of what "pariahs" they will be born. Yet these are the problems of the future of humanity.

BRITAIN'S "UNSAFE" NAVY LIMIT

LORD BEATTY'S WARNING TO THE NATION

LORD LLOYD ON LOCARNO PACT

(By A. A. B.)

Lord Beatty and Lord Lloyd need no introduction to the British public.

Lord Beatty was second in command to Lord Jellicoe during the first two years of the War and in command for the remainder of the War. Lord Lloyd has been Governor of Bombay and Consul-general of Egypt.

No nation in possession of its senses can afford to neglect the warnings of these two servants of the Empire, which are complementary to one another.

Lord Beatty told us that our standard of naval strength was insufficient either to make us an attractive ally or to make us play our part as a great Power. By the Treaty of London of 1930 we committed the grave blunder of accepting fifty cruisers to do the work of seventy. The Navy is wanted for the protection of our routes of commerce. Our present Navy is not strong enough for this duty.

The personnel of the Navy has been reduced by 12,000 men, while the personnel of the United States Navy is 107,000, 60 per cent. increase on 1914 numbers. That of Japan was increased to 88,000, an increase of 74 per cent. on the 1914 numbers; while our personnel has been reduced to 90,000, a decrease of 35 per cent. on our 1914 numbers, barely equal to that of Japan.

Let it be remembered that the acceptance of what Lord Beatty calls this "utterly unsafe limit" was forced upon us by the Socialist Government of 1930. In eternal times Mr. Ramsay MacDonald would have been impeached in the plain interests of the country, as he richly deserves to be at the present time.

Mr. Baldwin's Poor Policy

Lord Lloyd deals chiefly with the Treaty of Locarno, and he points out that it is useless to talk about keeping our engagements when we are plainly not able to do so. In the days of Mr. Pitt, England claimed and kept ascendancy in the councils of Europe. As that great statesman observed on a celebrated occasion, England has saved Europe by her example and will save herself by her energy. Under Mr. Baldwin she can do neither the one nor the other.

It is no use Mr. Baldwin exclaiming that we will stand by our engagements, when all the world knows that we have no power to do so. We have no expeditionary force; our air fleet is the fifth in point of numbers in the list of international air armies. In these circumstances, to talk of keeping our engagements, as a threat or reassurance to Europe, is simply laughable.

In fact, no one nowadays takes the League of Nations or the Treaty of Locarno seriously. Vehemently as I disagree with Hitler's domestic policy, I agree with his leaving the League and the Disarmament Conference. The era of talky-talky conferences is over. Why should Germany, or Britain, or any other nation, allow its destinies to remain in the hands of the League of Nations?

Foreign Policy Muddle

I agree with Hitler that every nation should decide its vast national interests for itself, although I find that it is a pretty prevalent impression at Geneva that Hitler will be back in the League before many more months are out.

I do not propose to enter into the question which has been so ably discussed as to our legal liability under the Treaty of Locarno. That is a very vexed and complicated question, which will divide international jurists for some time to come.

An amateur and unofficial inquiry into the wishes of the constituents in various parts of London as to whether they wish to be bound by the Treaty of Locarno, reveals much what one would have expected; that is to say, there is a certain number in favour of being bound by Locarno and a very much larger number against, but the majority say that they do not understand the question, and would prefer not to vote on it.

In truth, there is no question which more fully unveils the incompetence of a democratic Government to deal with the questions of foreign policy.

Too Much Public Diplomacy

We have heard a great deal of the advantages of public diplomacy over private. The muddle and deadlock in which we have now landed ourselves after a year and a half's talk is entirely due to this much-vaunted public diplomacy. Democracy "is a self-cancelling business which ends in zero," says Carlyle.

How could anyone imagine that Great Britain, Germany, Italy, France and America were going to agree upon the details of a disarmament scheme involving the inspection of each other's armaments?

In fact, the Treaty of Locarno, which was supposed to be the crown of Sir Austen Chamberlain's career, is the very Dunciad of diplomacy. But I do not see that the question of whether England is or is not bound by the Treaty is of the slightest importance, because, in the first place, England cannot carry out her engagements to fight for or against Germany, and, secondly, the people of England have no intention of being plunged for the second time into a European war for the sake of an abstraction such as equality of status.

It may be remarked in passing that both of these muddles are due to America, which withdrew at the eleventh hour from the Treaty of Versailles and persuaded us to reduce our Navy to what they call parity. What England wants is not parity, but superiority, and she is entitled to have it.

Germany says that she has a right to equality of status. That is nonsense. Whether she was responsible for the war or not, the war was waged and she was beaten.

A Vindictive Treaty

The Treaty of Versailles was undoubtedly vindictive and foolish, but still it can only be altered by degrees, and with the consent of the other parties. Germany has no right to parity or anything else. A legal right is a claim enforceable in a court of law. A moral right is something which those who claim it seek to have converted into a legal right by a court of authority. In this country we convert moral rights into legal ones by a suit in the Court of Chancery. (Continued on Page 11).

COURT-MARTIAL VERDICT

ALL 3 PRISONERS FOUND GUILTY

Army Education Office Under Fire.

DEFENCE COUNSEL ALLEGES CARELESSNESS

The Military Court Martial of Corporals Hayden Brealey and John Doughty, School Instructors, attached to the Lincolnshire Regiment and Private William McArdell, orderly at the Command Education Office and attached to the South Wales Borderers, who were charged with conspiracy, obtaining secret papers and communicating the same to unauthorised persons, under the Official Secrets Acts of 1911 and 1919, was brought to a conclusion this morning when Private McArdell was found guilty of all three charges, Corporal Brealey of obtaining secret papers and communicating them to unauthorised persons and Corporal John Doughty of communicating them.

Sentences were reserved subject to confirmation by the G.O.C.

Shaming comments on the Command Education Office by Lt. Hope, counsel for McArdell, were a prominent feature of his final address this morning, Lt. Hope at one stage stating:

"The Command Education Office is entirely to blame that the papers could be obtained. It is his duty under King's Regulations to look up secret and confidential documents. With very little trouble he could have had the papers kept in one of the numerous safes situated at Command Headquarters, even though it might entail a walk to the next block of buildings."

Major H. St. G. Thoyts, M.C., presided over the Court-Martial and was supported by Captain D. D. Nicholl, R.A. and Lieutenant J. L. Jordan, South Wales Borderers.

Mr. J. B. Prentiss appeared for the prosecution, assisted by the Prosecuting Officer, Captain T. H. Rigg, D.C.M., M.M., Lincolnshire Regiment.

Lieutenant J. W. Hope, Adjutant to the South Wales Borderers, appeared on behalf of Private W. McArdell, while Corporals Brealey and Doughty were represented by Mr. D. L. Strellett.

The Defence.

Mr. Strellett, in making his final address, said that the essence of the charges against Brealey and Doughty was conspiracy. Counsel said it might have come as considerable surprise to members of the Court-Martial and to others outside that the offences contained in the charges could have been brought within the scope of the Official Secrets Acts.

In dealing with Corporal Doughty, counsel said there was very little, if any, connection between Captain Cannon's evidence and that of Doughty, similarly with Warrant Officer Senior and Col. McGuinness's evidence.

Relating to Private Derham, counsel recalled the fact that the latter had gone to Shamshuipo Camp with the papers in his pocket to see some one. He did not know whom to see and had never heard of Doughty. "He was not looking for anyone in particular but was out on his own account to find a potential purchaser of his wares," said counsel.

Relating to the transaction in the cafe, counsel said that Doughty was in no way responsible for the meeting and was not a party to the meeting.

"Did he do anything to further the arrival of the papers in the hands of the candidates?" I submit that the prosecution have failed to prove such," said Mr. Strellett.

Brealey's Case.

Brealey, continued Mr. Strellett, did not ask Derham to bring the papers to Shamshuipo Camp, and the fact that they were there in no way incriminated him. Brealey was not going to risk his neck for the sake of imparting knowledge to a few candidates, as from his point of view there was no promotion or pay due to him for it.

What Brealey should have done, continued counsel, was to have told Derham to go away; but the fact that he did glance at the papers in no way made him a criminal.

Lieut. Hope's Address.

Lt. Hope, appearing for Private McArdell, said, "The prosecution is based on the evidence of Private Derham, a man who does not appear to be able to speak the truth, or at

SELF-GOVERNMENT IN MONGOLIA.

Agreement Reached With Princes.

RESOURCES OF COUNTRY TO BE DEVELOPED.

Peiping, To-day.

General Huang Shao-sung, Pacification Commissioner of Mongolia, is leaving Peking for Suifu after reaching a satisfactory agreement with the Mongolian Princes on certain principles regarding the organisation of self-government in Inner Mongolia, leaving details to be settled later on.

In an interview with pressmen, General Huang said that as a result of his observations in Mongolia he was satisfied that no ulterior purposes were evident in the demand of the Mongolian leaders for political autonomy.

He also said that Mongolia was extremely backward in its economic condition. The development of its resources and improvement of the living standard of the Mongolian people were urgently needed. Central News Agency.

any one time the whole truth. He first of all says he knew nothing of the case, then on October 12 he makes a statement and in the summary of evidence he makes up another story, while in Court he adds still further to his story.

"At best Private Derham is an accomplice and I need hardly draw the Court's attention to the danger of accepting the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice. His evidence is uncorroborated for the confessions or statements made by the Corporals are inadmissible as evidence against McArdell."

Education Office Criticised.

Continuing, Lt. Hope said he would draw the Court's attention to the haphazard running of the Command Education Office. Leakage had obviously been going on for a long time, caused entirely by negligence and the careless custody of secret documents had been kept in a stationery box for which there were evidently many keys.

"The Command Education Office is entirely to blame that the papers could be obtained. It is his duty under King's Regulations to look up secret and confidential documents and with very little trouble he could have had the papers kept in one of the numerous safes situated at Command Headquarters, even though it might entail a walk to the next block of buildings," said Lt. Hope.

In conclusion counsel said that with such haphazard running of the Command Education Office and casual custody of secret documents, anyone could have obtained them.

Mr. J. B. Prentiss, for the prosecution, then addressed the Court stressing that Private Derham's evidence had in no way been shaken in the cross-examination.

The Court, after an adjournment of 25 minutes, found all three prisoners guilty.

To Fight Milk Code

"We invite prosecution!" is the demand hurled at Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's edict establishing a Federal milk code by Norman Dietz (above), president of the Independent Milk Distributors' Association of Northern Illinois, who says he will file an injunction in Federal Court seeking to restrain the U. S. from enforcing code.

"FLYING GYPSIES" LAND IN COLONY

Vicente de Sibour Arrives.

3-HOUR FLIGHT FROM FORT BAYARD

The "Flying Gypsies," the name under which the well-known French war "ace" and pioneer aviator, the Vicomte de Sibour and his wife and family are travelling, arrived here to-day from Fort Bayard. The plane landed at Kai Tak aerodrome, at 12.05 p.m. after a three-hour flight.

The Vicomte and his party will stay in the Colony for several days, and will then take off for Canton before proceeding to Shanghai. While here they will stay at the Peninsula Hotel.

The plane is a De Havilland Gypsy Dragon Moth, with a 230 h.p. engine.

The flyers were preceded, last month, by the Vicomte's staff, who are flying alone to make the preliminary arrangements. This plane was piloted by M. Stron, who was accompanied by three companions. After a stay of several days in the Colony, they left for Foochow, which is the Vicomte's next stopping place.

M. Stron explained that the main party were delayed at Calcutta by monsoonal weather, and had arrived in Hanoi during the typhoon season.

This is the Vicomte's second trip to the Far East. On the previous occasion he touched China during a world flight. The present flight was started from Cannes, on September 24.

His wife is the daughter of the well-known London department Store manager, Mr. Gordon Selfridge, and this is the second occasion on which she has accompanied her husband on a long-distance flight.

To-day's Short Story.

NOW I'VE GOT YOU!

By Lucian Cary.

THE shantyboat in the bayou, well out of sight of the barges going down the river and the roving government snag boat, was bigger than most shantyboats. But the real difference was inside.

The stove in the cabin was not the rusted relic of a junk-heap, but a new kitchen stove. The bunks had springs and mattresses and grey blankets and sheets. The oil lamp on the table was a powerful reading-lamp, with a shade. The shotgun on the wall was cleaned and oiled and loaded.

Outside, a November rain came lashing through the blackness of a cold night, borne on furious gusts of wind. Within, the cabin was warm and light and snug.

The two men who sat on either side of the lamp reading newspapers, with a jug of corn whisky between them, were plainly not river loafers. And they were not duck-hunters, relaxing after a cold, wet day on the sandbars. There was no relaxation in them. They were not so much reading the newspapers as combing them, down one column and up the next.

They looked so much alike, as they read, that a casual observer might have taken them for twin brothers. Indeed, casual observers, not knowing there were two of them, had more than once mistaken one for the other. This error, on which their partnership rested, was an important part of their stock-in-trade. It enabled either of them to be seen in two places at once.

Talbot threw down his paper.

"KING OF BOMBERS" IN WORKHOUSE.

Six Months' Detention For Vagrancy.

Chicago, Illinois.

James Belcastro, known in the underworld here as "King of the Bombers," has been found guilty of vagrancy and has been sentenced to six months in the workhouse.

He is the fourth member of Chicago's hooligans to get a six month term within a fortnight.

The others were Walter Guida, a West Side character, "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, a famous gangland gunner, and Maxie Eisen, "Boss" of the fish racket.—Reuter.

Staff Sergeant T. Taylor (R.A.O.C.) and Mrs. Taylor arrived by the Neuralla this morning after spending a short leave in Shanghai.

Action on New York's Milk Strike Front

"They shall not pass!" was the slogan of this group when armed State Troopers faced the strikers of milk strikes pickets which lined the road leading dairy farmers. Eight men were injured before the two Boonville, N. Y., to prevent the dairymen's strikers were dispersed with tear gas and clubs—and League from delivering milk. But the arrival of the milk was delivered.

"They haven't got it" he said. "They probably won't have it for a week. We're safe."

Brownie went on reading diligently. There was one striking difference in their appearance. Brownie had a scar across his left cheek, as if someone had slashed him across the face with a keen blade. Talbot had no scar.

Brownie suddenly drew in his breath sharply. Talbot turned his head, instantly alert. He was the harder and stronger of the two.

"Listen to this," Brownie said.

He read aloud: "South Granby, New York, November 16.—The will of Arthur Wakefield Hadley, local philanthropist, leaves a hundred thousand dollars to John Cutter, in order, he will say, to right a great wrong. The will does not state what wrong is meant, but old residents recall that Cutter was indicated, charged with grand larceny, on the testimony of Hadley, seventeen years ago. The indictment was subsequently quashed. Cutter, who had lived here only a few weeks, left immediately. His present whereabouts are unknown. The will authorises the executors to spend five thousand dollars to find Cutter."

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "The King of The Schnorrers," by Israel Zangwill.

Talbot shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't see any way to do anything about that," he said. Brownie got up and walked to a window and tried to look out. Then he turned and faced Talbot.

"I'm the man they're looking for," he said. "I'm John Cutter." Talbot lit a cigarette. "Could you prove it?"

"My signature would prove it," Brownie said.

"A man's signature often changes a good deal in seventeen years," Talbot said.

Brownie got out paper and pen and began to write. He wrote John T. Cutter a dozen times. He passed the sheet across to Talbot.

"What about the T?" Talbot asked. He noticed that the signatures were free, without any hesitation. Talbot knew a good deal about handwriting. He was a singularly expert penman. He had made his living by his penmanship.

"That's the way I always signed it in those days," Brownie said. "My name is John Trueman Cutter."

Talbot got up and stretched himself on his bunk. From where he lay the light of the oil lamp was full on Brownie's face. His own face was in the shadow.

"Did you have that scar in those days, Brownie?" Talbot asked.

"I got that scar when I was a student at Heidelberg," Brownie said. "In a German student duel."

He rubbed the scar reflectively.

"It used to be more of a scar than it is now. It has faded."

"Then," Talbot said, "you'd find plenty of people in South Granby who would remember you."

Brownie poured himself half a lumberful of whisky from the jug. His hands trembled so, he spilled almost as much as he poured into the glass.

"Not many," he said. "I was being very quiet at the time."

Talbot lit a cigarette and lay on his back, staring up at the ceiling.

"How did you beat the larceny thing, Brownie?" he asked.

"I put the money back," Brownie said.

He did not explain and Talbot did not press him to explain. He finished his cigarette and put it out carefully.

"Well," he said, "do we start in the morning?"

"No," Brownie said. "Nor any other time."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I wouldn't go back there for a million dollars," he said.

Talbot's voice was soft—manacledly soft—as he spoke. "Why not, Brownie?"

Brownie shook his head. He drank the whisky he had poured out as if it were so much water and set his glass down. He stood up, and taking the jug in both hands, carefully poured out another half-tumblerful. He sat down again carefully.

NOW I'VE GOT YOU!

"I don't want to talk about it," he said. "I won't go back there."

Talbot sat down at the table and picked up the pen that Brownie had used and began to write the signature Brownie had written. His first attempt at imitation was good enough to satisfy most bank tellers. But Talbot wasn't satisfied. He kept on writing the signature over and over again.

Brownie raised his head. "I mean I won't have anything to do with it," he said. "That's flat." He saw the paper on which Talbot had been writing his signature. He saw what it meant. He jumped up.

"You aren't going to do anything about it either," he shouted. Brownie reached for the shotgun on the wall. Talbot hit him behind the ear as his hand reached the gun. Brownie went down. When he got up Talbot had the poker. His second blow knocked him unconscious. Brownie slumped down on the cabin floor.

Talbot worked fast. He got a piece of light line from the deck and a chunk of iron with a hole in it that they had used as an anchor for the skiff which lay alongside. Talbot tied the free end of the line around Brownie's ankles. He dragged Brownie out on deck and rolled him overboard and threw the piece of iron in after him.

It wasn't a one-man job to get the shanty-boat out into the river, but he did it. He dropped down the river twenty miles into another bayou and anchored at dark well out of sight of the river traffic.

He whetted his jack-knife to a razor edge. Then deliberately, precisely, he made a deep cut across his cheek. When he had drawn the cut together with surgeon's tape and stopped the bleeding as well as he could, he drank a pint of corn whisky and went to bed.

Talbot stayed in the bayou for three weeks, until the cut had healed. He ran down the river until he came to a town. He tied the skiff up to the dock and walked to the railway station and bought a ticket for Louisville.

He bought a small open roadster and drove with the top down, by leisurely ways, to Chicago. He could afford to take his time. If he lived economically, he could wait.

When the scar was a white line across a cheek tanned by long exposure to the sun and wind he drove to Albany. He got a South Granby telephone book. He made discreet inquiries. When he was ready he drove over to South Granby and called at the surrogate's office.

"My name," Talbot said, "is John T. Cutter."

"If you can prove it," the surrogate said, "you can collect a hundred thousand dollars."

"You don't remember me," Talbot said. He rubbed the scar on his cheek with the gesture that Brownie had made so familiar to him.

"I wouldn't say I do and I wouldn't say I don't," Hamill said. "It's been seventeen years—and you've changed."

"Yes," Talbot said, "I've changed."

"But I will say," Hamill continued, "I will say that you've got that same scar that John T. Cutter had. And the same way of stroking it."

"What do I do now?" he asked the surrogate.

"Come in here to-morrow morning," Hamill said. "I'll have the papers and the executors here. If the executors are satisfied that you're John T. Cutter, that's all there is to it."

When Talbot entered the surrogate's office the next morning a young man jumped up and held out his hand and said, "Hello, John."

Talbot shook hands with him gravely. He reflected that the young man must have been a boy seventeen years ago. "I'm afraid I don't remember you, sir," he said. He smiled. "Should I—remember you?"

The young man grinned. "No," he said. "I never saw you before in my life."

The young man introduced him to the others as Mr. Cutter. There were three executors of Hadley's estate, and the sheriff and the surrogate and the young man, did not state his interest in the occasion.

"Mr. Cutter," one of the executors said, "we wish that you would write your signature for us."

"I'd be glad to," Talbot said. "If you'll give me pen and paper I'll write my signature."

The surrogate asked Talbot to sit at his desk. He laid out a clean sheet of paper and a pen and a bottle of ink.

Talbot picked up the pen and wrote "John T. Cutter" in an unflattering hand. One of the executors looked over his shoulder in his eagerness to see the signature.

The surrogate took up the sheet on which he had written. The executors compared it with the signatures they had. They looked at one another and nodded. One of them spoke:

"We're satisfied, Mr. Cutter. I believe we shall have to call in a handwriting expert before we can actually give you the money. But we believe that will be nothing more than a formality."

Talbot smiled. It was too easy. "Surrogate," the man continued, "I think you might read the communication of Arthur Wakefield Hadley."

The surrogate took an envelope out of his safe.

"What I am about to read," he said, "is a letter from Arthur Wakefield Hadley to John T. Cutter." He paused and looked around the room. He read:

"Dear John:

"I am leaving you a hundred thousand dollars on one condition. But before I state that condition I wish to go back a little.

"You will remember the night that Edith disappeared. She had confessed to me that evening. We talked until long after midnight. I forgave her. I loved her. I had to forgive her. She went to bed in her bedroom and I in mine. I couldn't sleep. I heard your whistle outside. I heard her come into my bedroom to see if I was asleep. I closed my eyes. She went downstairs. When I heard her shut the front door I jumped out of bed. I followed her.

"She met you and you walked down to the park along the river. I couldn't hear what you said. I could hear your tones. I know that you were trying to force her to do something and she was refusing. You and she got into a boat and went out on the river. I waited until dawn and then I went home.

"You were at the hotel the next morning as usual. You were astounded when I told you Edith had disappeared. You knew nothing about it. I told no one else about it—then.

"I knew who had taken the bonds out of my safe. I went before the grand jury and gave the evidence and they indicted you. I never did find out how you managed to get them back. But you managed it. So that's that. You left town a free man.

"I found Edith's body. I was alone. I cut the rope. I never told anyone that when I found her there was a rope around her ankles with twenty pounds of iron on the other end. I couldn't endure to her infidelity. But I can endure it. I have the world know the story of when I am dead.

"Therefore, I am leaving you a hundred thousand dollars on one condition. That condition is that you convince a jury that you are innocent of Edith's murder."

Talbot jumped up. "It's a lie," he said hoarsely. "I'm not John T. Cutter."

The sheriff took him by the arm. "You'll have plenty of chance to prove who you are, Mr. Cutter," he said. "But just now you'd better come with me."

"Unless," the surrogate said, "Mr. Cutter would rather listen to the affidavits Arthur Wakefield Hadley left."

The young man who had called Talbot "John" got up. "I think the sheriff has the right idea," he said. He turned to Talbot. "I'm the prosecuting attorney," he said. "You will hear the evidence later—in court."

SHOT BY MASKED HIGHWAYMAN.

Strange Attack On Author's Son.

Cordova.

Civil guards are combing the district for the murderer of Don Gaspar Zurita, son of a well-known author, Antonio Zurita, who was shot while driving to his estate at Buñalance late at night.

Four masked men, armed with rifles, surrounded the car.

Don Gaspar drew his pistol and fired at them. They replied with a fusillade of bullets, which wounded him in the stomach and lungs, and then fled.

A friend who was with Don Gaspar had a miraculous escape from injury. He promptly took the wheel and drove to the Gordova hospital. Don Gaspar died soon after admission.

The motive for the outrage is not known.—Router.

NEURALIA ARRIVES FROM SHANGHAI

Regimental Flag Of "93rd" Flown.

ARGYLLS' ROUTE MARCH ROUND KOWLOON

Displaying the regimental flag of the 93rd Regiment of Foot, (the 2nd Battalion Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders) on the foremast, H. M. Transport "Neuralia" arrived from Shanghai at 7.30 this morning and berthed at Holt's Wharf.

At eight o'clock disembarkation of details began. These included drafts of various small units and departmental corps, and the rear party of the 2nd Battalion, the East Lancashire Regiment, numbering 45 other ranks, who were on river guard duty when the Battalion left Shanghai a fortnight ago.

The 2nd Battalion the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, en route to India, then disembarked for a route march around Kowloon, headed by the Band of the 1st Battalion the Lincolnshire Regiment.

Officers and men of the various Hong Kong units, who are leaving the Colony for Home, then embarked.

The Neuralia is leaving about 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Band of the 1st Battalion, the South Wales Borderers, will play on the wharf prior to her departure.

TWO LORRY DRIVERS FINED.

Reckless Driving And Dangerous Loading

MAGISTRATE REFERS TO ABERDEEN FATALITY

Pleading guilty to driving a lorry in a dangerous manner in Belchers' Street, Leung Wing Fung, was fined $20 by Mr. Hamilton at the Central Police Court this morning.

Traffic Sergeant Winslade prosecuted and said that the lorry travelled at 33 m.p.h. and cut a corner. The Magistrate warned the driver that if he came up before the Court again he would recommend his license for cancellation.

Excessive Length Of Poles.

Li Yick Tung, a lorry driver, was fined $10 by Mr. Hamilton at the Central Police Court this morning for carrying a load of bamboo poles which projected nine feet in excess of the length permitted.

The Magistrate referred to the fatal lorry accident near Aberdeen on October 27 and said that he considered the case as a serious one.

At eight o'clock this afternoon. The Band of the 1st Battalion, the South Wales Borderers, will play on the wharf prior to her departure.

BRITISH COKE FOR FINLAND.

Efforts To Increase Share In Market.

London, To-day. The Secretary for Mines, Mr. Ernest Brown, in the House of Commons yesterday, said that the British Coke Trade delegation visited Finland last month and discussed with the coke importers measures to maintain and increase the British share in the Finnish coke market as provided in the protocol to the Anglo-Finnish agreement.

The discussions were satisfactory to both sides and no serious difficulty now stood in the way of securing the desired increase. Mr. Brown stated.—British Wireless Service.

that China could not stand the strain of more civil strife.

In handling diplomatic affairs, he said the Central Government had proceeded with an open mind, and had never deviated from the principle of non-derogation of China's jurisdiction and her interests. — Central News Agency.
